

Paid media and campaigns

Status, results, and how we build together

Marketing meeting, Monday 29 June 2026 Mapal OS, internal

Where paid stands

Cleaned up the ad estate

Switched off campaigns running with no tracking or no results across Microsoft, Meta, the Nordics and old LinkedIn France campaigns.

Fixed the demo form tracking

It now records correctly in the UK, Spain and France.

Launched the new French Flow search campaigns

Brand and non-brand, now live.

Pointed wasted spend back at pipeline

Recovered budget now sits behind what brings in leads.

WASTED SPEND CUT

~5,800

per month, reinvested into what brings in pipeline

Warm audiences in play

[WARM_AUDIENCES]

Search drives the pipeline. Social is for warm retargeting and nurture.

What paid brings in

Paid is one of our top two channels by closed-won deals.

It pays back over the customer life.

Cost to acquire, high level

[COST_PER_LEAD]

per lead

[COST_PER_OPP]

per opportunity

[COST_PER_WON]

per customer

About 3x. Paid search brings in pipeline at roughly three times the rate of paid social.

The full monthly PPC KPI report lands Tuesday, so this is the lighter status view.

How we build campaigns together

Ownership, the request path, and what every campaign needs.

Every campaign sits in one structure

And maps to one approved theme, named [REGION]-[ICP]-[THEME].

Business objective

The big-rock priority it ladders up to.

Campaign (theme)

The ongoing initiative. [REGION]-[ICP]-[THEME].

Channel or source

Where we reach them: paid social, paid search, email, events.

HubSpot feature

Forms, ads, scoring and workflows that capture and report it.

Why it matters. The theme name is the thread that ties spend, leads and pipeline together. If the theme is missing or wrong, the campaign will not show up in reporting.

Who owns what

Performance owns search

Evergreen, always-on search sits with performance all year. Beyond that it is collaborative: you bring the keywords, we build and optimise. Requests fold into the shared evergreen campaigns so the data compounds.

Growth teams commission paid social

LinkedIn campaigns plus event and content bursts. You bring the brief and assets, performance builds it and wires up the tracking.

You own the HubSpot campaign. Create it for your initiative, named to the theme. Performance links the paid UTMs and leads, so it stays yours.

One request path for everything: the PPC Campaign Request form.

Three things every campaign needs before it goes live

A working conversion

The action it drives is set up and firing.
Verified before launch, not after.

A tracked form

A live landing page with a HubSpot form that captures the UTM hidden fields. No 404s, no redirects.

A clean UTM link

Built in the HubSpot URL Builder to the naming standard, not hand-typed or numeric.

When these three are set, the campaign launches clean and reports properly. If one is missing, we sort it together before going live.

How to request a campaign

Submit via the PPC Campaign Request form.

Build needs 3 to 5 working days
before your deadline.

What to provide

- Market, product and ICP
- The theme it maps to, from the approved list
- Goal and the conversion it should drive
- The live landing page URL, with a HubSpot form on it
- Lead routing: nurture, SDR, or both
- Assets and copy
- Deadline

One structure. Consistent setup. Better reporting.

Set it up right at the request and it shows up everywhere it should: the Monday snapshot, pipeline, and the campaigns that earn more budget.
